Select Poetry.

MY OWN NATIVE LAND.

Though a child of a land whose flowers are bright,
Whose songsters the ear with sweet music delight,
Whose silvery waters glance 'neath a bright sun,
As lisping and laughing they oceanward run;
Yet, dearer to me, though trampled it be,
Is that Emerald Isle far away in the sea;
Where the ivy creeps softly o'er ruin and decay,
And the bone of my fathers are mould'ring away.

Though here smiling valleys delight the sad eye,
And mountains their summit conceal in the sky,
Though hills rise in beauty, with forests crowned o'er,
And water falls drown the loud thunder's deep roar:
Yet, all fail to charm this sad heart of mine,
Which, for that dear land, does silently pine,
Where under the shamrocks and gravestone gray,
The bones of my fathers are mouldering away.

Though here the sun shines as warm and as bright,
And the same silent moon treads the blue vault of night;
Though the host of bright stars that watch o'er me here,
Are the same that look down upon Erin so dear;
Yet, Fancy in visions, with colors more bright,
Paints the mild sunny day and the clear quiet night,
With its moon that grows pale, and, in grief wanes away.

Though here, genial friends grasp my hand in their own,
Though kindred abound, of my own flesh and bone;
Though lands fair and broad, yield their treasures to me,
And I live 'neath a flag that e'er floats o'r the free;
Yet, all will I leave, for they soothe not my heart,
'Neath its ever green shamrocks my body I'll lay,
Side by side with my fathers to moulder away.

Select Miscellany.

A Change of Base.

BY RUTH CHESTERFIELD.

David Thompson's new house was finished at last, the litter of carpenters, masons and painters was cleared away, and now he had brought with him his intended wife, that they might plan for fitting it up.

David had been engaged three years, but being a prudent young man, he said he could never marry till he had a fair start in the world. He thought he had it now, since, in addition to youth, health, a house and 20 acres of land, Mr. Burch, the great mill owner, had lately made him his foreman, a position he had long coveted. The wedding day was therefore fixed for September ——, three months hence.

For once in the world's history, no one found any fault with the match, but all declared the happy pair were very well suited for each other.

Sallie Dearing, the bride elect, was neither a beauty, a belle, nor a genius she was just a sweet womanly woman, with domestic habits, and a great many little feminine tastes and fancies.

As to the Dearing family, they were respectable, root and branch, and always had been as far back as memory or records could go.

At the present time there were none of them remaining in town save Sallie and her parents, who were getting to be elderly people when she was born.

"It's a good house and thoroughly built," said David, looking around him with satisfaction. "I allowed none but the best material to go into it. It might have been done a third cheaper, but I said no—it is for a lifetime."

"And so bright and sunny," said Sallie, "it seems like home already. Some houses strike a chill as soon as you enter them, but I don't think ours can ever be one of that kind."

"I don't think any house could, with you for its mistress," returned David, gallantly.

In every apartment Sallie found something to praise and admire, from the bay-window in the parlor to the washboilers in the back kitchen. Opening the door of the bed-room on the ground floor, she remarked—"This shall be our father's and mother's room. It's just near enough to the parlor for company, and just far enough off to be quiet.—You must have planned it on purpose for them, such a dear, good David as you are," and the young lady laid her hand carelessly on his arm.

David took no notice of the slight advance, however, but stood twirling his moustache, and looking thoughtful and embarrassed.

"Of course my parents are to live with us?" said Sallie, questioningly, after a pause.

"I feared you might be expecting it," answered David, "and I have evaded the subject in such a way that I hoped you would understand me without any explanation It seems you did not however, and the explanation may as well come now as any time. If you will think the matter over, you will see that this thing cannot be."

"Why not?"

"Because no body could reasonably expect a young man to take such a burthen upon his shoulders."

"But they'll not be a burthen upon you—at least not much. My parents are not paupers."

"And who'll take care of them in their old age?" asked David.

"Who should, but the daughter they took care of when she was a babe?" replied Sallie.

"I want my wife to wait on me."

"I don't think I should ever fail in my duty to my husband."

"I'm sure you wouldn't, my darling, so now it's settled, and well say no more about it."

"David, I put to you the same question you put to me. Who will take care of my parents in their old age? Who, if their daughters forsakes them?"

"I don't ask you to forsake them," said David, impatiently; "that's just like your high-flown way of putting things. I am willing you should do as much for your parents as other people do for theirs; but who hesitates to marry and leave the old folks behind? It is the way of the world. The young bird forsakes the old nest, and builds a new one."

"But have you never read how the stork that was young and strong winged, carried the old one on its back? and would you have me less dutiful than the fowls of the air?" replied Sallie.

"After all, the brute creation are no patterns for us," said David, seeing how Sallie had turned the tables upon him. "And doesn't the Scripture's say that a man shall leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife? Answer me that. Of course, the same rule holds good for women, too. So now, my dear, let us drop the subject. I haven't shown you the second story yet. I hope you will admire the staircase, for I quite pride myself upon it," and the young man started to lead the way up stairs.

"It is no use to go any further," said Sallie, mournfully, yet firmly.

"What do you mean by that?" asked David, pausing and looking back.

"That I shall live where my parents do."

"Without me?"

"That's for you to decide."

"And I have decided. Of all the women in the world I have chosen you—but when I marry you, I do not marry your family."

"Very well, David."

"How am I to understand that?"

"That you and I part company"

"Very well, it is, then. But let me tell you this, I'm not the man to be trifled with. It is now or never with me—."

"Never,"—said Sallie.

"And let me tell you further, that if you won't be mistress of this house, there are plenty that will. There's Jennie Burns, the handsomest girl in the country—I will not say she is to be had for the asking; but I have reason to know she thinks favorably of me. As to this freak of yours, it is nothing more nor less than sheer obstinacy under the guise of filial piety."

"Hard words avail nothing; but this I will say, that whoever you bring here, be it Jennie Burns or another, I scarcely think she can be to you what I could have been—I, who have loved you so long and faithfully. And, David, when you shut me out of your life and home because I refused to break the Fifth Commandment, take care that you do not shut out God's blessing at the same time."

Sallie had advanced to the outside door and was standing on the threshold, and the setting sun, which, through the hazy atmosphere, was red as blood, shone full upon her. As she said the last words she raised her hand to heaven, and, bathed in that crimson light, she reminded David of a martyr in the flames. He thought that she had never looked so noble, and that he had never loved her so well, but he answered not a word. He walked home with her in silence, and refused to enter the house.

Mr. Burch, besides being owner of the mill, was an amateur farmer. He took delight in drives and strange breeds of animals, and rare specimens of plants. He seldom visited the mills, leaving the care of the business almost entirely to his foreman. Beyond these facts, the towns-people knew little of him, for he lived in great seclusion at his place, Riverbank, which was a mile or two out of the village.

Having heard that his foreman was about to be married, he offered him the prettiest Alderney heifer on his farm as a present, and invited him to come and select it himself. David thanked him very heartily at the time, but had never availed himself of the offer. Mr. Burch supposed this might be owing to diffidence, and one day rallied him on the subject.

"I'm not going to be married, sir—at least not at present," said Davie, looking glum.

"Indeed! I hope nothing serious has occurred," said Mr. Burch.

"It's all off," said David, shaking his head.

"A lover's quarrel, perhaps. If that's all, don't despair. Young ladies like to be coaxed."

"Not Sallie, sir," said David.

"I suppose then she has taken some new fancy. They're fickle creatures these womenkind. What suits them to-day, offends them to-morrow. Well, cheer up, my lad, and learn to get along without them, as I do," said Mr. Burch, smiling and laying his hand lightly on David's shoulder.

"I'm certain Sallie never loved any one but me," answered David, decidedly, "and since you are so kind as to take an interest in the affair, I will tell you the truth about it. She was unreasonable enough to expect to saddle me with the care of her old father and mother."

"And you could not afford to take such a charge. Well, I am glad you told me, for that is easily settled. Rather than two young people should be disappointed, I'll raise your salary."

"It was not just that," said David; "the Dearings have a little property of their own—but she had some fine-spun notions about the matter, and wanted to take them into the family."

"Oh!" said Mr. B., and paused abruptly, seemingly intently occupied with punching little holes in the ground with his gold-headed cane. "One shouldn't be hasty in affairs of so much importance," said he at length. "Perhaps you may yet induce her to reconsider."

"It would be of no use to try," said David, "for you might at well attempt to move the sun as to move Sallie Dearing when once she gets set upon anything she fancies to be her duty."

"Very unreasonable, truly," said Mr. B.; but there was a touch of sarcasm in his tone. "And you could not think of yielding yourself?"

"Never, sir, never."

"Well, you shall have the Alderney all the same, for I suppose you won't sell your place?"

"Not I, sir, nor buy a rope to hang myself with, either."

Mr. Burch laughed, and as he walked away he said to himself, "I guess the heifer will console him for his loss."

David did not, indeed, buy a rope to hang himself; but he slipped his neck into the matrimonial noose in the course of a few months, and moved into his new house precisely as he planned to do—the only difference being that Jennie Burns was his bride instead of Sallie Dearing.

Sallie, meanwhile, was not left entirely without consolation, for, if she had lost a lover, she had gained a friend, and that friend was no less a personage than Mr. Burch.

She was much surprised one day, on opening the front door in answer to the summons of the great brass knocker, to behold him standing on the step, and his horse pawing at the gate—about as much surprised as you would be if the statute of Washington, which adorns the square, should dismount from its rampart steed and pay you a visit.

He extended his hand smilingly, and inquired for her father and mother, upon which Sallie invited him in. He said he had been trying to obtain some of the old English strawberry plants. He had the Hovey seedling and the Bartlett, and in fact almost every other variety; but the old English had become very rare, and he was told that Mr. Dearing had it.

Upon which Mr. Dearing said that he had, and that Mr. Burch was welcome to some. And then they fell into a long conversation about horticulture in general, and Mrs. Dearing treated him to a glass of her elderberry wine. So he stayed an hour or more, and though he addressed but few words to Sallie, his hazel eyes were upon her even while he talked to her father. And so, upon one pretext or another, he continued to come until at last he came without any pretext at all.

The old people valued his society on their own account not a little, but more because, as they said, the companionship of a gentleman like Mr. Burch was such an advantage to a young girl like their daughter. As for Sallie, she regarded him as a dear brother, or at least she thought she did, until her old friend Mrs. Burdock—the same woman who was so scandalized by the "pink ribbons"—destroyed the allusion.

It was one afternoon in early June, when Mr. Dearing slept in his arm-chair his wife darned his stockings, and Sallie sat stitching away upon some pretty piece of nonsense—which, truth to tell, she was much addicted to doing—that Mrs. Burdock stalked in like some gaunt and grizly Fate. After discoursing a short time about the lateness of the season, the prospect for crops—Mrs. Black's "rheumatiz" and Mr. Brown's broken leg—she came at last to the subject uppermost in her mind, and which had been the real motive of her call.

"So Mr. Burch is going to be married," she remarked, looking keenly at Sallie. That young woman gave a little start which caused her to prick her finger and stain her work with blood, and let us hope she derived a momentary satisfaction from the fancy that the cambric was Mrs. Burdock, and the needle a dagger. She did not, however, look up nor make any reply, but her mother said, in the most commonplace way in the world:

"Is he? Who is the lady?"

"That I hain't found out, but he's fixin' up his house with the beautifulest new things. I made an arrant there and saw 'em myself. It must be the Queen of Sheby at least," and Mrs. Burdock cackled at her own wit. "He's been down to Boston three times in one week—only think of it," she added.

What followed Sallie did not hear—she felt confused and bewildered, and was thankful when she could steal away to her chamber. Then she reproached herself for feeling distressed at the news. "What is it to me," she thought "whether he is married or not? He has been the kindest and dearest of friends and I hoped things might continue as they were, but I had no right to expect it. Well, whatever happens, I shall always reverence him as the noblest man in the world—nobody can deprive me of that comfort."

Like many other young ladies, Sallie was a little given to superlatives, as may be seen.

The next day Mr. Burch called, smiling, as handsome as ever. He confirmed the truth of Mrs. Burdock's statement with regard to refitting his house, and paid Sallie the compliment of asking the benefit of her taste in completing the arrangements.

"Will you put on your hat and go with me now?" he asked.

"Certainly," she said, and tried to add, "with pleasure," but the words got no further than her throat.

She remembered how she had once gone over another house with another bridegroom, but it was not that memory which caused her to sigh as she crossed the threshold at Riverbank.

"Indeed, Mr. Burch, you had little need of any taste but your own," she observed.

They had nearly completed the survey of the house, and were now standing by a recess filled with the choicest of plants.

"Then you are pleased?" he asked.

"I am charmed."

"It still lacks one thing without which even Paradise was not complete," he said—"its Eve."

"A difficulty which will soon be supplied, I suppose," said she turning her back on Mr. Burch, and looking intently into the heart of a calla-lily.

"That depends on you," he said.

"On me!" exclaimed Sallie, facing him now; "how can that be?"

"Because, unless you consent to marry me yourself, I shall remain single."

"Impossible!" said she.

"Have I presumed too much?" he asked, regarding her earnestly.

"I meant impossible that you could think of me," stammered simple Sallie, blushing rosily.

"But seeing that it is not impossible—what then?"

"Why then—"

"I shall fill up the blank to suit myself, said he, bending lower, and taking her hands in his, but, to his surprise, she drew back.

"There are some things that may cause you to alter your mind," said she.

"Well?" said he, and waited for what she had to say next.

"I have been engaged before," she said.

"I know it."

"To your foreman."

I know it.

"I have two old people dependent on my care.

"I know it."

"And I can never leave them.

"And I never wish you too. It was hearing of your devotion to them that first led me to seek your acquaintance. I know so dutiful a daughter must make a true and faithful wife, and so I set myself to the task of winning your affection. Have I succeeded?"

Sallie was again wrapt in contemplation of the call-lily. But Mr. Burch was a man who was not to be put off with any evasions, so he repeated, "Have I succeeded?"

"Yes," said Sallie.

Then he kissed her, as it was high time he should do, and said a great many lack-adaisical things to her, of which this is one:

"I won't say that your personal graces had no effect upon me; but then I must have loved you if you had been as gaunt and grim as——"

"Mrs. Burdock," suggested Sallie.—Both laughed, and he finished his sentence—"instead of the sweetest little lady in all the world as you are."

So Mr. Burch fulfilled the prediction of Mrs. Burdock, and brought a wife to Riverbank; but that good woman was sorely disappointed that the expected "Queen of Sheby" should turn out to be nobody but little Sallie Dearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Dearing were very happy in their new home; nor do I think their son-in-law ever regarded them as a burden or wished them away, for he was more than once heard to remark,—"There is nothing which gives such dignity to a house as the presence of serene old age."

No special misfortunes befel David Thompson, and the world voted him a prosperous man, yet sometimes, when vexed to the soul by a vain, frivulous and heartless wife, he thinks of one whose steadfast spirit might have been his stay and comfort.

And sometimes, when returning home at evening, he fancies he sees standing on his threshold, by the crimson light of the setting sun, a figure with one hand raised to heaven, and these are the words it utters:—

"And, David, when you shut me out of your life and home because I refuse to break the Fifth Commandment, take care that you do not shut out God's blessing at the same time!"—New England Farmer.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN.

Terms $2 Per Annum in Advance.

BELLEFONTE, PA.,

Wednesday Morning, May 18, 1870.

ADVERTISING.—The Bellefonte Republican has now a Circulation as Large, if not Larger, than the Democratic Watchman, and fully 900 more than any other Republican paper published in the County. Our Merchants and Business Men will please make a note of this.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!!

The Bellefonte "Republican" and the "American Agriculturist."

We are now prepared to offer to the people of Centre county, a Great Bargain for the coming year. It is this: To every subscriber who will send us $3.00, in advance, we will send the

and the
"AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST,"

for one year. Of the REPUBLICAN we need not speak at present.

The American Agriculturist is a work that no farmer, nor house-keeper should be without. As a farm-journal we think it has no superior in the world—certainly none in the United States. It is issued monthly, and the subscription price is $1.50 per annum. By clubing with the REPUBLICAN you save fifty cents, and secure more good reading matter than you can obtain in any other way for the same money.

We hope the reading public will avail themselves of this very liberal offer.

IN consequence of the absence of the Senior Editor, the REPUBLICAN lacks, this week, its usual interest in editorial and local matter. A rich "treat" may be looked for next week. Be patient, readers.

We regret to learn that Dr. Thomas Vanvalzah, died, on the 6th inst., at Lewistown, at the age of 77 years.—He was a practicing physician for fifty-six years, and was an assistant Surgeon in the war of 1812.

IN another column of the REPUBLICAN under the Caption of "Confederate Conspirators—Look upon this picture" &c., will be seen three articles, selected from three different papers, one of which is professedly REPUBLICAN and two are from Democratic papers. Republicans of Centre, can you tell which is which? No, we know you cannot, for they sound so much alike. We will tell you. The first is from the Watchman, the second from the National, the third from the Centre Hail Reporter. How much they all sound like the Confederate and Democratic papers during the war! Are they not a glorious trio? Further comments next week.

A Success.

The Republican party is a success. Only ten years old in the history of victory, it has won more victories, accomplished greater results, and made a grander record than any political organization of the past or present. It prescribes no narrow or impossible uniformities of political belief. It has but one grand fundamental idea—the equality not of men, nor of men and women, but of the rights of all men and of all women. No party has ever met more prejudice; no party has ever encountered more ignorance of its real ideas and purposes; no party ever had such a sure hold upon the masses of the people.

Its uniform success has cursed it with the support of the professional office-hunters—the treason of Johnson, made President by an irreparable calamity, rid it of very much effete and corrupt, and dirty matter which naturally belonged and readily went to the other side; its complete victory over caste, and ignorance, and littleness, and prejudice—a victory so complete as to leave no respectable enemy—is such as to suggest a fight for the spoils in our ranks, which might tarnish our good name and hurt our cause. This danger confronts us here at home.

But we have no fear. Our Representative in the Congress of the United States has selected for his favor, two brave and gallant soldiers, and two civilians, and each has been a good defender of our cause—all are well qualified for the work appointed them, and all are such as to deserve the favor shown, either by the fact that they have little folks growing up to educate and look after, or that they have been active in season and out of season to advance the cause of the party of Liberty and Equality of Rights.

So far as Centre County is concerned, our party to-day, even in the eyes of its enemies, occupies a proud position, and it only remains for us to persevere and carry out our principles, and all will be well, as all that is past has been more than well.

All local jealousies, all personal motives, all little tricks and small things, all that would hurt or weaken our cause must be at once put down and ended, and the Republican party must prove their ability to use the great advantage they have won by their courage, consistency and constancy in the great battle of our country, as becomes a great party and a noble and glorious record.

We can never be beaten by Democrats, as such. Their day is gone, and their power is ended. If we are beaten in the future it will be only because we have of ourselves divided our household and invited our enemies to perfect a destruction we have begun. In Centre county, we are still gaining, and need only honesty and unanimity, sincerity and fair dealing to make our victory a complete and final one.

CONFEDERATE CONSPIRATORS LOOK UPON THIS PICTURE.

"After Money, we Suppose.

In the Republican of this week we notice that no less than five colums are devoted to the approval of the course of Lord Armstrong, "our" member of Congress. It is mostly a sickly attempt to prove that he did his duty by the tariff men of the district, by running away and not voting when the question came up. Now as to whether he did or whether he didn't we don't care a continental curse. In dodging that vote, he simply showed that he was a coward, or else that he considered his own private business of more importance than the interest of the people he was elected to represent. But it is not in reference to the dodging Congressman of this district that we propose writing at this time. It is timply to inquire what has broke loose that Brown and Hutchison have espoused his cause so earnestly? We know that there is no one for whom the editors of the Republican have a more supreme contempt than just W. H. Armstrong—and we know, too, that one of these editors asserted on the streets of Bellefonte, within two weeks past, that his dodging the vote on the tariff question would lose him three hundred votes in this county alone. What has transpired since then? Have they made up their minds that they will need money, and can probably get some out of Armstrong? We happen to be aware of the fact that this is the cause of their strenuous support of certain radicals, supposed to be blessed with an abundance of greenbacks or government bonds. It don't matter to them whether a man is fit or not: they go for him anyway, if they think they can bleed him pretty freely. It was this principle that led them to support so warmly a certain banker in the Western part of the State for State Treasurer, last fall. At that time there was no financier in the commonwealth like him—no man with the ability honor or integrity he possessed. Now, since within the past three weeks, he has refused to lend them $500 in consideration of their laudatives of him, we will venture the assertion that his name hereafter will be as much of a stranger to the columns of the Republican as either common sense or common decency are.

How is it, gentlemen? Do you really think Armstrong was right in running away when the tariff question was up, or do you expect to write him a very polite letter shortly, requesting the loan of $500, in consideration of your palaver of him, as you did but a few weeks ago, to your candidate for State Treasurer, last January?

We know that this is no business of ours, but we would just like to be informed by the editors of the Republican whether it is greenbacks they are after, or whether the people of the county are to understand that they consider a representative does right in attending to his own private affairs and leaving the interests of their constituents to take care of themselves, as Armstrong has done ever since his election?"

And now upon this?

"Once More.

Last week, the National made a few remarks in connetion with the absence of Hon. W. H. Armstrong, M. C., when the vote was taken in Congress on the duty on pig iron, by which the duty was reduced, by a vote of 66 to 64, from $9 to $5 per ton. The National went on to state that it would require an unusally good reason on the part of the Honorable gentleman, to regain the confidence of his constituents greatly alienated by Mr. Armstrong's surprising absence at that time.

The absence of congressmen from their posts of duty, during the past winter, has been severely animadverted upon by nearly every paper in the country. Never before have these servants of the people so shamefully and unblushingly absented themselves from their places, and certainly the people of this great Commonwealth really have had great interest at stake requiring ceaseless watchfulness upon the part of their public servants. No one can deny that Mr. Armstrong has done his share of flitting between Washington and Williamsport, during the present session of Congress.

We did not think to revert to this subject again, but a contemporary, with an unusal amount of political dust at hand, seeks to rescue the Honorable gentleman from public censure, and drown his short-comings in a swolen creek. It says Mr. Armstrong was "paired," and to aid force to the pairing, he was "paired with Archer!" Is it possible? It's not every man who could get paired with Archer of Maryland, for be it known that one of the strongest arguments advanced against Archer's election, was that he was never in his place when the interests of his constituents most required it. And it may be added that the argument has been most thoroughly sustained by Archer's proverbial absence from Congress. It was, therefore a capital hit Mr. Armstrong made in pairing with Archer, who never made a speech in Congress on the tariff question, and for that matter, upon any other. But, our contemporary triumphantly exclaims:

"During his absence from Washington Mr. Armstrong's friends paired him with Mr. Haldaman, not remembering that he had himself paired off with Mr. Archer, and thus it happened that his absence was in fact a gain of one vote for the bill."

Now, that's refreshing. The "Globe" says our enthusiastic public-eye-blinder, "next day contained all the facts in the case," including the rise in the creek at Williamsport, Mr. Armstrong's large interests on the river, the harrowing scene between Mr. Armstrong and his friends as he sought to tear himself away, and all that. And Mr. Armstrong's friends so mistrusted his having paired, that in spite of the Globe's record, they get him paired with Mr. Haldeman. Very smart, more dishonorable, as the Globe stated that Mr. Armstrong was already paired with Mr. Archer, and to render more ridiculous the triumphant assertion that Mr. Armstrong's absence was a gain of one vote for the bill, it is just necessary to state that Haldeman was not paired with Mr. Armstrong when the vote was taken!

Again, consistency, the jewel, should be observed by our contemporary. Said contemporary could find no words too adjectively strong with which too lash poor Jakey Meyer for being absent from his seat at Harrisburg on a certain occasion, when, in fact, the incompetent old goose was actually sick and upon the flat of his long back. Per contra: Said contemporary can find no words too adjectively strong with which to exonerate Mr. Armstrong from criticism for his shameful and reckless absence.

We are not blind to the short-comings of our party servants. We do not believe it always the best policy to cover them with excuses, and laboriously explain away their many remissnesses. It is neither honest, fair to party, justice to the member, or true journalism. The system of "pairing" is fast growing into disrepute. The best class of representatives abominate the habit, and are not found among those who practice it. The time has long passed when ingeniously framed cock-and-bull stories about "pairin, swolen creeks, large interests, supplication of friends," and for ought we know "two gin mills," will pass muster with a Protective Traiff as are the laboring men of this Commonwealth.

And then upon this:

"Wm. H. Armstrong, who represents this district in Congress, was absent from his seat, when the vote was taken to reduce the duty on pig iron—in other words, Armstrong dodged.—Now as the Radical press of this district keeps howling so fiercely for protection and high tariffs, let's see what they have to say about radical Billy Armstrong dodging their pet question. Brown's paper has assumed to be an especial tariff organ, and we bet our old beaver, Brown sings mum about this dodge, and will keep lashing away frantically at the "ring," and the County Treasurer, as a make-believe that the Democracy are a bad set set of fellows. Brown beats all creation at crying stop thief when his party out-Herods Herod in rascality and cowardice. Had J. G. Meyer, or some other copperhead, dodged so important a vote, what a yell these radical scamps would set up. There would be no end to the blackguardism and villification, in which they have become graduates, if this dodging of Armstrong's had been done by a Democrat.—Vive la humbug."

By Atlantic Cable.

LONDON, May 9, 1870.—"The anticipated reduction on iron by the United States causes great activity in the iron regions of Whales." How now? Does "a reduction of the duties on iron by the United States." cause "great activity" in the "iron regions" of Missouri, of Michigan, of Ohio, of Maryland, of New Jersey, of New York, of Pennsylvania? No. But it causes great consternation. It causes apprehension for the future. It causes men, with all they possess on earth invested in iron works, to forbode disaster, and to cast about them for some escape from the impending ruin. It warns us to prepare for a competition with the revived Iron Masters of Wales, under which our furnaces and mills must close or our workmen accept wages far below what they now receive. It forces the mechanic to give up the hope he may have cherished of laying up a competence for old age. It notifies him that his heart's desire for a home of his own to shelter his wife and children, will now be beyond his reach, and it will force him to relapse into his hopeless life of earning, each day, what enables him to live, and it forces him to abandon all the bright hopes and prospects just opening before him under the patriotic, the beneficent, the honest policy of PROTECTION TO AMERICAN LABOR!

And this is the feast to which American Tories styled Free Traders, and their buyers and owners, the British Iron masters of Wales, invite us! This is the end of all the bosh which has been dinned in our ears for years.—With every evidence which ordinarily convinces human minds and controls the judgement of men palpably spread out before us for two generations, that the life of our vast iron industry exists only by protection against the cheap labor and cheap money of Great Britain, the anti-American, the dishonest, and the destructive Free Traders, assisted by immense sums of British Gold, have at last well nigh succeeded in inducing the American Congress to destroy American manufactures!

If the friends of American Industry fail to prevent their enemies—both Long and English—bringing ruin on our country, these enemies may as well make up their mind to meet, at no distant day, an indignation from the betrayed workingmen of this country which shall cause them, once for all, to abandon the work of their English masters, to decline to sell themselves hereafter to compass the humiliation and ruin of their country, and to repent, while they live, for the sin they are now committing basely, and for dirty Pounds, Shillings and Pence.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

ONE of the victims of the Richmond disaster was a Republican member of the State Legislature. Ten years ago, a Virginia newspaper would have spoken of him in the phrase still fashionable with the Penn'a. Democracy, as a "nigger." But times have changed in the Old Dominion, as may be inferred from the annexed paragraph, taken from a Richmond journal of last week:

"Poor Bland, the colored member from Prince Edward, who was killed by the dreadful accident on Wednesday last, had by his straitforward, manly and independent course, attracted the respect and confidence of both races. Had he lived, he would doubtless have been the foremost man of his race in the State. He was a man of excelent natural parts, and availed himself of every opportunity of self-improvement. His good sense, good principiples, and sound and elevated views of public duty, were conspicuously displayed whenever he was brought before the public. His death is as much deplored by the white people of the State as it is by those of his own race.

THE Secretary of the Treasury reports $11,697,793 39, as the amount paid on the national debt for the month ending April 30th, and $67,933,966 82 as the sum total of the reduction of the national debt since May 1st, 1869. Such figures are the strongest recommendation that can be given as to the integrity and ability of the Republican administration.

Execution at Reading.

READING, May 13.—The execution of John Deal, the murderer of Richard M. Harlan, transpired within the prison yard here between one and two o'clock this afternoon, and was very quietly conducted. About two hundred persons were permitted to witness it. The condemned man met his fate with great calmness. He ate a hearty meal two hours before the execution. He was attended on the scaffold by three of the Catholic clergy of this city, and made a few almost inaudible remarks to the effect that he appeared to expatiate a crime for which he was confident of the forgiveness of the Divine Redeemer.

He manifested no trepidation when the noose was adjusted, the cap drawn over his eyes, and his arms pinioned. The drop fell at twenty-five minutes before two o'clock. A drawing up of the lower limbs, several times repeated, and a few subsequent tremors of the frame were all that indicated the struggle with death. After about 35 minutes, life was pronounced to be extinct, and the body was cut down. An examination by the physicians proved that the neck had not been dislocated.

Deal made no further statement regarding the murder. He had previously admitted the killing of Harlan, which was perpetrated with a hatchet afterwards found in his possession, and that the deed had been committed in the heat of passion while excited by drink.

There was very little excitement outside of the prison, and but a small crowd gathered in the neighborhood, nor was there a much larger number of people in the city or appearing upon the street.

Kansas.

FORT SCOTT, May 13.—An account of the most diabolical affair ever recorded is published in to-day's Monitor. On Tuesday seven men, either Texans or straggling outlaws from the Indian Territory, came to the town of Ladore, a few miles south of here. After drinking all day, they went to the boarding house of J. R. Roach and asked to stay all night.

Being refused on account of their drunken condition, one of the party knocked Roach insensible with a revolver, and assaulted his two daughters in a most fiendish manner.

Roach revived after a time, but feared to stir, knowing that he would be killed if he did so. He describes the cries and entreaties of the girls as heart-rending. A quarrel arose among the demons, and one was shot dead.

At daybreak the party fled, one taking with him to the woods the young girl. The town was immediately aroused, and parties started in every direction in search of the fiends. The one with the girl was soon overtaken and hung to a tree.

Two others were found secreted in the town, and were hung to the same tree and the remaining three were also captured, and two of them were hung. The other, at the last account, was in custody of the citizens, but will probably share the fate of his companions.

The universal verdict here is that in this instance, at least, the summary manner of inflicting punishment is entirely justified.

Fire at Wilkesbarre.

A dispatch from Wilkesbarre on Friday 6 inst.

A disastrous fire broke out between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning, destroying some half a dozen barns and outbuildings. The extensive livery stable of P. Coniff, in which were 31 horses, 2 cows, and a lot of pigs was entirely destroyed. None of the stock was saved. One pair of horses was valued at $1500. Loss cannot now be ascertained. Partially insured.

A terrible conflagration is now raging along the line of the Wilkesbarre Mountains, extending from this place to Clark's Green. It originated from some unknown cause at White Haven, on the line of the Lehigh Valley and Lehigh and Susquehanna Railroad, and its fearful progress has proved irresistable. The entire population are out fighting the flames, but thus far their efforts have been futile.

The loss along the route must be very heavy. Accounts already received report the destruction of millions of lumber and cord wood, and miles of fence, nine dwelling house, seven barns, a large steam saw mill, and considerable other valuable property. Nothing short of a heavy rain will extinguish this immense fire, which threatens devastation to everything in its course.

THE microscope shows the color of the hair due to a deposition of pigment in its substance. When the hair glands become enfeebled, this pigment fails. One after another the hairs become white, or fall out, producing baldness. Baldness is easy to prevent but hard to cure. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR stops it: even restores the hair sometimes: always restores its color. Immediate renovation is at once visible; softeness, freshness and the gloss of youth. This great ornament should be preserved since it can be by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which is beautifully clean free from anything injurious to the hair.—[Tribune, Springville, N. Y.

A memorial service in commemoration of the lives of Rev. Dr. John McClintock, Bishop Edward Thompson, and Bishop Calvin Kingsley was held last Wednesday night in Music Hall, Boston which was appropriately draped in mourning and adorned with flowers. A large audience was in attendance. A eulogy on Rev. Dr. McClintock was delivered by Rev. J W. Lindsey, D. D.; on Bishop Kingsley by Rev. George Prentice, and on Bishop Thompson by Rev. H. W. Warren.

Maryland.

BALTIMORE, May 13.—Mayor Banks offers a reward of five hundred dollars for the arrest of the murderer of Reufenact, on the 2d inst. Governor Bowie offers a similar reward.

The Germans here have formed a sort of Vigilance Committee, to detect lawless persons, in consequence of the supposed neglect of the authorities to ferret out the murderers alluded to.

In the Gen Conference of the M. E. Church, seventh day, the Committee on Boundaries made a report, after which the ritual was resumed and discussed at length. The portion referring to the use of the Commandments and beatitudes was adopted. That including the Apostles' creed was rejected. The evening session was devoted to hearing a report from the agent of the Western Maryland College.

John Johnson, aged between eight and nine years, was killed last week at Morgan's coke works, Fayette county, in this manner: He was standing between the main track and the siding while the hands were shifting some cars, when, in attempting to cross in front of the cars, he was struck and knocked down, the front car-wheels passing over his head, scattering his brains over the track.

A little daughter, three years old, of John Alt, of Mill Creek, Elk county, was burned to death last week. The mother had left the child in the house alone, and gone to the mill where her husband was at work, and after fifteen minutes' absence returned and found the child burned to a crisp. The child's clothes had caught from the stove, it is supposed.

Clark Harrison, a bridge carpenter in the employ of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, was killed on Wednesday, last, at the tunnel near Scranton, by the collision of two cars, which had broken loose from a freight train, with a wood train.

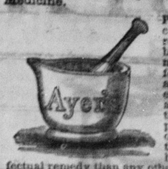
MISCELLANEOUS.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.



Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends; and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but vastly more are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar-coating preserves them ever fresh, and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

ROSADALIS.
THE GREAT AMERICAN health RESTORER, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women, and all Chronic Affections of the blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and many thousands of our best citizens. Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis; send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health Book, or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.
Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says:
I take pleasure in recommending your ROSADALIS as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in a case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredients.
Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of Scrofula and Secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleanser of the Blood I know no better remedy.
Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro', Tenn., says:
I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

JOB WORK.—Posters, Circulars, Bill Heads, Cards, Paper Hooks, Job Work of all kinds, neatly executed at the REPUBLICAN OFFICE, at reasonable rates.

HOWARD is to have a select school under the control of Prof. S. L. Stiver.

WE stated last week that Jacksonville has three Sunday Schools. It has four, we were mistaken. What town can beat that?

THE Odd Fellows have moved into their new hall across the creek. We suggest the building be lettered Odd Fellow's Hall.

THE United Brethren church is undergoing repairs. Our friend Jerry Fasic being the repairer. Its appearance will be materially improved.

THE citizens of the West ward will shortly have the opportunity of testing the quality of water furnished by the borough dads. So say the council.

THE papers everywhere contain notices of persons being bitten with mad dogs. This should be a sufficient warning to our people to have their dogs muzzled.

JAMES H. LIPTON, proprietor of the Cumming's House has sold his trotting mare "Rose," to Mr. Cumming's of Philadelphia for the beautiful sum of $500 cash.

THE "Coleville College" has closed for the present term. We understand that it will be re-opened, shortly, under the tutorship of the same teacher—Mr. Zimmerman.

THE ten or twelve piles of dirt arrayed artistically upon the Wykoff pavement, in front of the Bush House, presents anything else than a handsome or attractive appearance.

ANOTHER.—The sand bank, which was reported in the Watchman a few weeks ago, to have been discovered on the hill near the reservoir, has turned out to be another "Mammoth Cave."

THE attempt to fix the board-walk, on Bishop street, was abandoned on account of the wet weather. In dry weather we suppose it will be fixed—just the time when the ground is as nice as boards.

OLD SOL comes down very severe this week. We hear many persons say, "I have the the spring fever." If any physician in this or any other place can prescribe for the relief of these poor fellows let him 'scribe.

CUMMING'S HOUSE.—Jas. H. Lipton, of this place, has charge of this popular hotel. We can recommend this hotel to the traveling public generally. Mr. Lipton sets a good table and is a very accommodating landlord.

THE Temple of Honor, a secret temperance organization, was instituted here a short time ago. It now numbers fourteen members and constantly increasing. This is a good addition to the secret organizations of this place.

THE citizens of Jacksonville have constructed an elegant board walk from one end of the town to the other. This enterprising people are determined that they will compete with other places.

May success attend all their enterprises.

WESLEY LAMBERT, of the Sunny Side Gardens has splendid plants of all kinds. We have seen them and tried them. The plants are large and thrifty and persons desiring quick products can't do better than purchase their plants from Mr. Lambert.

MR. JOHN R. TATE, carpenter at Pleasant Gap, while engaged in tearing down an old barn belonging to Mr. Hamilton was severely injured in the left hand by falling upon a rusty nail. Also in the right arm by having a board fall some distance upon it cutting it severely.

ACCIDENT.—On Sunday evening, the 8th inst., Mrs. Wm. Hess, in stepping out of the door of her residence opposite the tannery in Unionville, fell and broke her leg. Dr. J. M. Blair was immediately called, set the broken bone and we understand she is in a very precarious condition. We hope she may recover.

WE printed last week, circulars, letterheads and envelopes for Wilson, Betz & Co., of Jacksonville. They say and so do we that this is just what gives a firm strength and reputation abroad as well as at home. Don't the rest of the country and town dealers think so? If they do, let them come here to have their printing done.

THE new Presbyterian church of this place will be dedicated to the services of Almighty God on the 22nd of June.

This is a very beautiful edifice and speaks well on behalf of the members.

Visitors generally measure the intelligence of our town by our magnificent churches and school house.

IN another column we insert the professional card of Dr. L. M. Holloway of Jacksonville. We would respectfully call the attention, of all persons that feel themselves concerned, to this notice. We can commend this physician to all persons living in and around Jacksonville, also in Nittany and Bald Eagle valleys.

We are informed that a couple of weeks ago two men in Howard traded horses. A few days afterward one of the men effected a trade himself by entering the stable in the dead hour of night and exchanged horses. Imagine the surprise of the man who took no part in the last trade when he entered the stable the next morning. Such things are frequently made but are very pleasant to either party.

MEMORIAL DAY.—The following order has been issued from the Headquarters Graud Army of the Republic:

I. The annual ceremonies of "Memorial Day," which has been firmly established by national choice and consent will take place on Monday, the 30th, day of May.

II. All departments, districts, posts, and comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, wherever dispersed throughout the land, will unite in such manner, and with such ceremonies, for the proper observance of the day as may be best suited to each respective locality, and all organizations, and communities, and persons whose grateful aid, sympathy and prayers sustained us throughout the dark days of the nation's peril, and those whose loyal patriotic hearts beat in unison with our own, and who have heretofore, or may hereafter, join us in the observance of this memorial day, are hereby cordially invited to unite, and are earnestly requested to lend their aid and assistance in strewing the pure garlands of spring that come with votive memories of love and prayer, o'er the mounds that mark the country's altar and fold in rest eternal our martyred dead.

This is the third public observance of a day which has become marked and national for this sacred occasion. Many are now missing from our ranks who were with us before. Time, with busy fingers counts the hours for all. "In the midst of life we are in death," and one by one our veterns are "mustered out" to join the grand army on high. Let this teach us that we should so live that when we are gone it can be said: "He was a citizen, a soldier, and comrade, 'without fear and without reproach.'"

III. It is desirable that the memorial services may be preserved, and department and post commanders will forward direct to the adjutant general headquarters a record of such proceedings as may occur in each locality. Should the same appear in the press, or by pamphlet, a duplicate corrected copy is requested. By order:

JOHN A. LOGAN,
Commander-in Chief.

WILLIAM T. COLLIS, Adjutant General.

AN INGENIOUS INVENTION.—John G. Kurtz, Esq., a newspaper publisher of Bellefonte, Pa., has invented an ingenious machine for canceling revenue stamps, and has made appliestion for a patent. He has sent us a sample of impressions made by his apparatus, which consists merely of perforations in the paper marking the date of cancellation. The figures representing the year and the day of the month, and the letters representing the month are neatly and accurately formed by perforating the stamp. The advantage of this system of canceling is, that it places the stamp beyond all possibility of being used again. There is no chance for the application of chemical agencies to make erasures, as no ink is used. It is stated that those machines already in use print the date in ink, thus making it possible for swindlers to re-use the stamps by washing out the old dates and substituting a new one. Mr. Kurtz seems to have hit upon the right appliance, and if so we may expect to see it adopted by the Government.

The above we copy from the Pittsburg Commercial which fully approves of the ingenuity of Mr. Kurtz. We endorse it; and hope that this invention may be universally introduced and used.

IT is a well established fact, that the firm of Geo. Blymyer & Sons, Grain Dealers, at Milroy, Mifflin county, are a reliable and energetic one, as our Pennsvalley readers in particular, know, but having lately secured the services of James McNitt, as superintendent of their Warehouse at that place, they have again shown their good judgment. Mr. McNitt has every qualification necessary to fit him for the responsible position in which the Messrs. Blymyer have placed him, and you can rest assured that all business transacted with him will be strictly in accordance with that much abused word "honesty."

The Messrs. Blymyer's pay cash for all kinds of Grain, and keep constantly for sale, at their Warehouse, Fish, Salt, Plaster, &c. Success to you gentlemen, one and all.

BOALSBURG ACADEMY.—The Literary Society of Boalsburg Academy, on Friday, evening last, had a Lecture delivered by A. B. Hutchison for the purpose of raising funds for adding to their Public Library. The Lecture was listened to by the best class of our citizens, and was generally approved. The society and the Academy is prospering, and deserves the generous support of the good people of this community. The young ladies and gentlemen who furnished the music for the occasion—the Boalsburg Brass Band having declined to do so for less than five dollars currency—deserves especial mention as they proved themselves equal to their task in all respects, and delighted the audience with their music.

POWERS & MCCLAIN.—This enterprising firm has just received from the eastern cities, the largest and cheapest assortment of Boots and Shoes, Gaiters, and in fact everything usually kept in a first class boot and shoe store. We would advise the citizens of Bellefonte and vicinity to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere.

They also manufacture all kinds of work to order. They employ first class workmen, only, and warrant all work. Gentlemen will consult their interest by calling on that prince of shoe-makers—Mr. John Powers, when they are in need of fashionable boots. Give them a call.

BURNSIDE & THOMAS' object is to furnish their customers with the very best goods, at the very lowest prices. They are convinced that this is the proper course to pursue to secure justice to the purchaser and to establish the superiority of their articles. It is their aim never to consider anything good enough that is capable of improving. Their prices are as low as they possibly can be. We would call special attention of our readers to the merits of this enterprising firm.

CONFERENCE.—The annual conference of Messiah's church in Pennsylvania will hold its thirteenth annual session in Messiah's church on Little Toby, Elk county, Pa., commencing, Wednesday, May 25th, 1870, at 10 o'clock, a. m., continuing over the following Sabbath. Rev. M. L. Jackson, of Shiremantown, Pa., will deliver the annual sermon on the first evening of the conference. Three public services each day, consisting of Social services, Preaching and Addresses.

Ample accommodations will be provided for all in attendance.

The route is well laid out and the chapel easy of access.

WE have received KING'S MUSICAL LEAVES for May. It consists of sixteen large pages devoted to Choice Literature, Music, and Romance. Among the literary contents we note 'Mozart in London,' 'Love in the Fire,' 'To an Absent Wife,' 'Heart's Own Music,' etc. There are also four pieces of Music: 'The Angelus,' 'Little Maggie May,' 'Beautiful Nell,' and 'Blue Bird Echo Polka.' All they ask for a subscription is one dollar a year. The music during the year could not be bought for less than $20. Published by R. B. King, Philadelphia.

WE are in receipt of the following communication to which we call the attention of every one:

CENTRAL CITY, Pa., May 6, 1870.

CAPT. HUTCHISON:—

Dear Sir: Why can't there be a volunteer company organized in Bellefonte? And why can't there be one raised in Milesburg?

There is sufficient material at either place to effect a good strong organization. The military spirit is not dead but dormant and a very little excitement would revive it. What is more charming than the fife and drum?

Bureaus and every thing in his line, of the latest style, all of which are cheap and good. Also, a very fine assortment of new large Mirrors of the finest French Plate Glass and perfect modern finish, together with the largest and best selection of Wall Papers of the most tasteful modern Patterns and of every price and quality.—Call and examine his stock.

We suggest to our citizens that a meeting be called and arrangements be made to properly decorate with flowers the graves of our soldiers on the 30th day of May—Decoration Day—In our county are buried some of the most gallant and noble of our countries defenders. They died that we might enjoy liberty and Union. Let all our citizens in all localities in the county, call meetings on Saturday evening, May 28th, to arrange for the decoration of the soldiers graves on Monday afternoon the 30th inst.

OUR clever and good hearted friend Mr. D. I. Parsons has opened a tinware establishment in the rooms formerly occupied by us, on Bishop street, opposite Keller & Musser's store where will be found a grand assortment of tin and sheet iron ware. He is constantly manufacturing articles of all kinds. Persons desiring anything made to order will do well to give him a call, as he employs none but competent workmen. We bespeak for him the patronage of the public.

As our Pennsvalley readers often visit Milroy, on business, we would advise them to call at the fine Clothing store of Ab. Hirsh & Bro., opposite the Union House, and examine their excellent and cheap stock of Clothing, &c. Their goods are all selected with the greatest care, are made from good material and in the best possible manner.

The Messrs. Hirsch are gentlemen, good business men and will give you a good bargain. Call and see them.

BOOTS & SHOES.—E. Graham & Son, have just received from Philadelphia a new supply of well selected and superior made Boots, Shoes, Gaiters, &c., all of which are cheap, durable and of the latest styles.

Graham & Son have the reputation of keeping none but the best of goods in their line and take pleasure in offering them to their many customers. Call and see them.

A brother typo entered our office the other day with a new summer hat on. He said he purchased it at Montgomery's, No. 7 Brockerhoff's Row, where every person can buy any kind of a hat they desire and cheap; Also all kinds and styles of summer suits made to order and a perfect fit guaranteed. Call and see their Furnishing Goods, before purchasing elsewhere.

HOUSE cleaning has had such a run that even the boaders at the Brookerhoff had to turn out and see all things washed and white-washed and generally scrubbed up. There is nothing dirty kept about the Brockerhoff—at least the people who stop there say so. And we learn that neither Furey or Brainerd stops there.

THE Philipsburg Literary Society held a public session last Friday evening, which we understand was a success.

This is a live institution and we wish it success in all its useful enterprises. We hope to note the particulars next week.

And wore out all their clothing.

CHORUS, for the end of each verse:

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And we buy clothes from A. STERNBERG,
A most delightful notion.

WEDNESDAY MORNING May.18, '70

Be a Land-Owner.

The man who owns a spot of land large enough, when cultivated, to yield him the food he requires can be as truly independent as the millionaire. It is vastly comfortable to know that even if business grows bad, and accumulations dwindled away, we still hold the title deed of a plot of ground in some remote locality, it may be, to which we can retire, and by hard physical exertion gain from it bread for ourselves and our little ones.

In this great city, we are surrounded by thousands who do not own as much land as would suffice to bury them in, but who would quickly resent our accusation were we therefore to charge them with improvidence. It is at times pitiful to see how this great army of clerks and placemen cringe before their employers and superiors in position. They know that their salary is all that stands between them and poverty, and that if they should lose their positions, they would have no better chance to get another than that throng about them, which is constantly clamoring for city employment. So they fawn and flatter, hoping thereby to put off the evil day which is approaching for so many of them.—A man may be a placeman, and yet throw out shoots in many directions, so that, should his main crop fail, he will not be at the mercy of the blast; and he is wise who takes such precautions.

It is not such a hard matter to become a land owner if we are willing to commence in a small way. A few hundred dollars and in many places a much less sum will purchase an acre, which is a good deal of land in the eyes of him who never before owned a foot of soil.

It is not well to buy more land than can be paid for out and out, as the purpose should be to secure an unincumbered homestead. The land being purchased, the next thing is to locate the house, so that our next saving may go to digging the cellar. The raising of the frame will then follow as a matter of course, and the covering of it will not be a very costly affair; so that at last, without any great expense, we will have a piece of land and a house on it, and will have advanced thus far toward true independence. It may be that the sum required seems a large amount to save out of a salary, and yet self-denial becomes easy if our hearts are fixed upon the end to be attained.

After the house is built, we can decide upon the lay out of the grounds, and so, step by step, we shall go on, our affections naturally going out to that which we think much about, until a last we shall feel more than willing to leave the pent up city for the free and open country. If no other memberof the family appreciates such a change, the children will, and they are by no means to be the least regarded. It does not hurt boys, or girls either, to be sunbrowned or freckled, and if they do roll in the dirt, they will, like some of the old Titans, gain increased strength from their contract with mother Earth.

There is another important view of owning land improving to which we can now only briefly allude, but which must not be forgotten. It is that while well selected property is sure to appreciate in value, we have also nature to assist in making profitable any thing we plant or set out. Sickness and accidents often eat up the hard earned savings of many a clerk or salaried official, but nanure is working for the farmer and the horticulturist incessantly, even while he is unable to work for himself. An individual can by his own unaided labor do little more than support himself. So it behooves as many as possible to hitch Dame nature also to the car in which they would ride to competency and independence.

We must not, however, be understood as advising city men to give up their present employments to seek country houses. They should bless the bridge that carries them over and still continue in the calling in which long practice has made them adepts. It is wise, however, to keep on the lookout for good investments and for stormy and disastrous days. Let every one then see to it that he becomes a land owner as soon as possible. A well located country homestead will prove a good investment, and will be several steps, if not the entire ladder, by which the aspiring young man may climb to true competency and independence.

Warm Shelter.

Cows in milk require warm shelter at this season of the year, or they will be apt to shrink rapidly in quality.—At the same time, a barn that is too warm and not properly ventilated, is to be avoided. A great deal of loss is occasioned by exposure to cold winds and storms. If the weather is cold and sunny, cows like to be out in the yard in the middle of the day, and no doubt it does them good. But to let them run out all day and often in stormy weather, is what we hope no intelligent reader is guilty of. Feed them a few roots after each milking, beginning with the round turnip first, if there are any, then the Swede, and wind up in the spring on the mangolds. We think a cow in milk ought to be carded quite often, and as this is not a very busy season of the year, why not set a regular time for it every day.—Ploughman.

Diseases of Poultry.

The ailments of fowls may generally be traced to a variabletemperature, to irregular, injudicious feeding, or to their being kept on the ground which has become impure with their use of it. Judicious feeding, perfect cleanliness, and occasional removal to new ground, will, to a great extent, keep fowls healthy

Roup.—Roup is a somewhat general term for most diseases, but it is most properly applied to a cold. The fowl becomes drooping, fœtid matter running from the nostrils s vollen eyes and disordered excrement. The symptom s most prevalent in roup are difficult and noisy breathing, or a kind of rattling in the throat, begining with what is generally termed gapes. The head becomes feverish and much swollen, and the eyelids livid with decay of sight, and even total blindness. There is considerable discharge, from the nostrils, and even from the mouth, of fœtid matter, at the commencement thin and limpid, but afterword thick and purulent and very offensive. As secondary symptoms, the appetite is all but gone, except for drink; the crop feels hard to the touch, and the featuers are staring, ruffled, and without a healthy gloss. The fowl sits moping and wasting in corners, always apparently in great pain. In this stage of disease it is supposed to be infectious, and whether so or not, it is certainly proper, for cleanliness' sake, if nothing else, to separate the diseased from the healthy ones, to prevent the disease from spreading.

Sickly fowls should always be removed from the fowl house on the first symptom of illness, as they are generally ill used by their companions—poked at, and evidently become objects of dislike. As soon as the disease is discovered, if in warm weather, remove the infected ones to some warm place, then give a dessert spoonful of castor oil; wash their heads with warm castile, soap suds, and let them remain until the next morning, fasting; scald for them Indian meal adding two and a half ounces Epsom salts, for ten hens, or in proportion for a less or greater number; give it warm, repeat the dose in a day or two if they do not recover. They should, above all, be kept warm and have plenty of pure water.

Fowls sometimes waste away without any apparent disorder. In such cases a teaspoonful of cod-liver oil per day will be found a most efficacious remedy.

Scouring or diarrhœa is caused by the too abundant use of relaxing food. Cayenne pepper, or chalk, or both mixed with meal or boiled rice, checks the complaint.

Gapes, in nine cases out of ten, are obtained from rain or impure water, and if a certain preventive (not cure) is desired, the use of camphor will be found the most efficient remedy. A small lump, about the size of a peanut, kept constantly in the vessel from which the fowls drink, will make gapes unknown in your yard. Having carefully adopted this precaution this year more particularly, and having raised over two hundred chickens, without one case of gapes, I can testify that camphor is the only certain remedy.

Apoplexy with fowls, as in human beings, is difficult to cure. It is generally the result of high feeding, and is most common among laying hens, which are sometimes found dead on the nest the expulsive efforts required in laying being the immediate cause of the attack.

The only hope for cure consists in an instant and copious bleeding, by opening a veinwith a sharp pointed penknife or lancet. The largest of the veins seen on the under-side of the wing, should be selected, and opened in a longitudinal direction, but not cross, and so long as the thumb is pressed on the vein at any point between the opening and the body, the blood will be found to flow freely. Light food and rest should be given the bird after the operation.

Leg weakness is generally caused by the size and weight of the body, being more than the legs can bear. It is shown by the bird sesting on the first joint. Being entirely the result of weakness, the best treatment is that which gives general strength and stamina to the sufferer. Tincture of iron, say five drops to a saucer of water, must be given.

Many persons consider the diseases of fowls as beneath their notice, but we think it is our duty to study whatever may tend to alleviate the sufferings of domestic animals kept for our own gratification, for they must not be allowed to pine and die unaided.

Everything worth knowing, we ought to know, and our knowledge should be such as would render us equal to all the emergencies of poultry sickness.

The diseases of poultry, being taken in time, may not result in a serious malady, too often resulting in death; but procrastination is generally as fatal in poultry keeping as in anything else.—American Stock Journal.

LAWNS.—To have a fine close turf, it is essential that the ground should be rich, the seed thickly sown, and the grass be mown frequently. Weeds for the most part flourish best in a soil too poor for the grass to make a sufficiently strong growth to crowd them out. Frequent mowing not only keeps the turf thick, but it destroys the annual weeds. Good hand mowers may now be had for $25 and 30. It is best to mow often and leave the cut grass to act as a fertilizer. Bone dust and ashes are excellent as a top-dressing.

THE cotton crop of last year is estimated at 6,000,000 bales.

PLANTATION BITTERS.
S. T.—1860—X.

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid, it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climatesf tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits. For sale by all druggists. v2n12-6m.

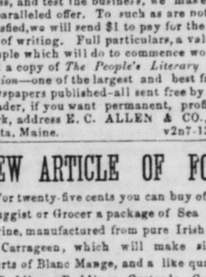
THE GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.

MORE THAN 500,000 PERSONS Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK,



Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine made from the native Roots and Herbs of California free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and Life Giving Principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator, of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins: cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

In Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, these Bitters have no equal. For full directions read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.

LOSE'S LIVERY STABLE.

The undersigned having entered into partnership in the Livery Business, under the firm name of Isaac Lose & Son, adopt this method of informing the people of Bellefonte, and the public generally, that they will carry on the business in the Burnside stable. It is their determination to keep the very best and to hire them out at the most reasonable rates. Thankful for the kindness and favor they have received from the community in the past they will make it their chief object to merit the continuance of the same.
